THE TORCH
Class of 1962
East Bridgewater High School
East Bridgewater, Massachusetts
PLAN

Foreword

We, the yearbook staff, have tried to demonstrate a certain measure of our appreciation by selecting "The Growth of Our School" as the theme for the 1962 Torch. This is a fitting tribute to the schools which did so much to help mold our early years, so that we might profit by them in later life.

The process of maturing from childhood to adolescence is similar to the process of making steel. At birth we were like a fresh discovery of iron ore. In childhood our "ore" was refined. Now we are near the final stage. As young adults we are being tempered and made ready for the form which we, no doubt, shall retain for the rest of our lives. These steps, however, are but a simple outline of a much more complex process. Just as heat, materials, and time affect the quality of steel, so do a multitude of factors modify our own development.

Our high school education has certainly impelled the molding of our character. Because of the fine social and educational influences inherent in our schools, we can feel reasonably optimistic about the future. Thank you, E.B.H.S., for the mold and temper you have given us.

Building Committee

Over the years, the East Bridgewater building committee has done much to further the cause of education in the town. The high school is a prime indication of their effort. In 1955 the committee issued a bulletin containing its plans for a new high school. After its erection the crowded classroom situation was considerably alleviated as the twelve grades were redistributed by the 6-4-4 plan. Because of the foresight and planning ability of this committee we now enjoy pleasant classrooms, modern laboratories, a fine auditorium, a large gym, and many other outstanding facilities.

OUR

Mr. McGowan has been so devoted to us during his six years as class advisor. He has chaperoned our class dances and taken us on many trips. He has conducted the Driver Training Class, coached the tennis team, and initiated a science club which many of us have enjoyed. He has taught us to accept and share responsibilities effectively. Many thanks to you, Mr. McGowan, for helping our class to fulfill satisfactorily its high school years.

Mr. Robinson has been of great assistance in the difficult task of organizing our publication. He has unreservedly devoted to us his time and valuable experience in this endeavor.

In appreciation for the time and assistance you have rendered, we, the class of 1962, dedicate our yearbook to you:

SCHOOL DEPARTMENT
EAST BRIDGEWATER

Class of 1962:

One of the things of which all of us need to be reminded is that one's education does not stop at commencement time. Education is a continuous process, and those who would stop learning when they leave school are really taking a backward step.

To the seniors who are about to graduate from the East Bridgewater High School I would say keep up with your reading of good books and, through your reading, continue to develop a keen interest in the world in which you live. Go on with your appreciation of good music, good art, and good literature. Try to find opportunities wherever you are to be of real service to your fellow men; affiliate yourselves with those institutions and movements that have for their purpose the making of a better world.

And remember that genuine and lasting success comes to him who can lose himself in the interest of others. It is my wish that you may have such success.

Sincerely,

Stanley B. Goldman

HIGH SCHOOL
EMERY S. LOUD, PRINCIPAL

To the members of the Class of 1962:

During the past quarter century I have had the opportunity to observe many changes in East Bridgewater High School. At one time our school housed pupils from grades four through twelve. Upon completion of the Central School we became the Junior-Senior High School. Your class was the first to spend most of its four years in our present structure.

Over this period classes have increased from an average of about fifty students to our present average of one hundred and eight. The senior high school staff has increased from ten to twenty-one full time teachers. New courses have been added and old ones adapted to current needs. Our athletic program has developed from a basketball and a baseball team to our present well-roundad program for both boys and girls.

With these physical changes has come a new challenge. A changing world demands higher achievement and greater skills of its youth. This role too, we have tried to meet. The world casts down its gauntlet before you. You must pick it up, accept the challenge, and move on to even greater growth; mental, physical, and spiritual. Growth is an inevitable natural process, the accompaniment to progress. Let us then look upon the past with pride and to the future with confidence.

Sincerely yours,

Emery S. Loud

GUIDANCE DIRECTOR

As our new guidance director, Mrs. Briggs has had a great deal of experience in working with young people. For the past two years she has been a guidance director in New Hampshire. Previous to this she taught Latin, math, and English at East Providence Senior High School.

Her impression of E.B. High is a favorable one, for she is pleased with the industrious earnest, and studious attitude of the student body.

Mrs. Briggs has spent much of the year working on the post-graduate plans of Seniors. Besides the complex task of college admissions, her responsibilities entail curriculum programming, student employment, activity coordination, and the Student Council.

ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT

We, the Class of 1962, gratefully acknowledge Mr. Morey's fine and outstanding job as administrative assistant. He has served as an advisor and part-time parent as well. One of the duties of parenthood is discipline, but this is only a small, unpleasant part of Mr. Morey's duties. Through the years he has lent to this and other classes invaluable advice and assistance. Looking back, we realize that Mr. Morey, by his own high standards, has inspired us to reach for higher goals, so that we, too, might gain the respect and honor that are his.

MISS MARTHA A. EKWALL B.A.

MISS A. EILEEN BUCKLEY B.F.A.
Remedial Reading and English

MR. BRADFORD N. ROBINSON B.A.
English

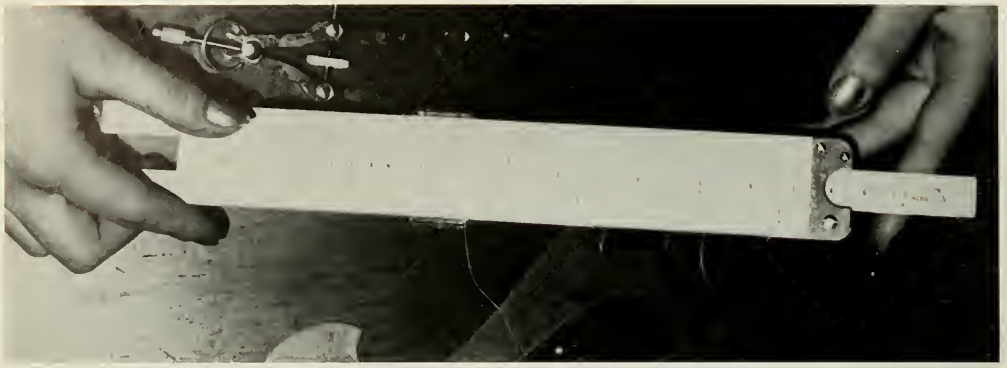
During the past few years the English department has shown a considerable amount of progress. From a basic study of grammar and the classics, it has been enlarged to include creative writing, contemporary novels, and modern drama. Here the student is presented both a thorough training in the use of English and a diversified background in the culture it has produced.

Languages

MISS MARY SULLIVAN B.S., A.M.
French and Latin

MR. DONALD R. KETCHAM, JR. B.S.Ed.
French

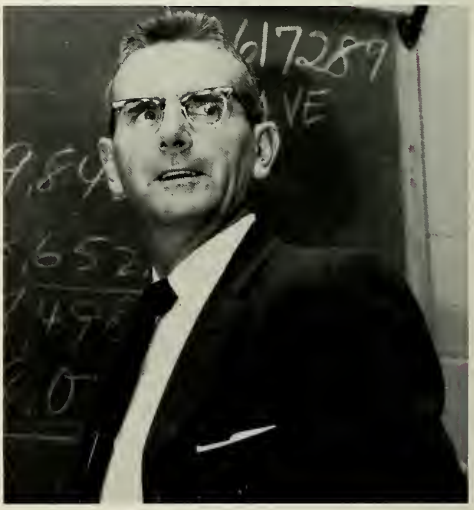
As the East Bridgewater school system has flourished, so has its language department. Since the beginning of her career Miss Mary Sullivan, teacher of French and Latin, has aided students in their quest for knowledge. There has been an ever-increasing demand for languages, until now over half of the school takes either French or Latin. A fully-equipped language laboratory will be in use next year. It is certain to create greater interest and stimulate even more progress in our language department.



Mathematics

The emphasis put on the role of mathematics in science, in industry, and in our daily lives has increased overwhelmingly within the past few years. The math department of E.B.H.S. has been considerably amplified to conform to the requirements of today's technical world. To meet these demands adequately, math is undergoing tremendous changes in regard to teaching methods. Soon, many schools, including our own, will adopt the set theory approach to modern mathematics. At the present time, this department offers sound instruction in those fields of math necessary for college admission or work in the business field.

MR. THOMAS F. WILLIAMS B.S.Ed., Ed.M.
Algebra, Geometry, Advanced Math



MR. JOSEPH F. MOREY B.S.Ed.
Business Math

Science

Our science department, along with mathematics, is now being gradually modified to keep up with the increasing emphasis on technology. New equipment, text books, and instruction methods have been introduced into the classroom to bring high school science up to date with the pace of modern society. The student is offered a choice of biology, chemistry, physics, and a general survey of all three. Each course aims to teach the essential laws and principles of its field, to develop logical, rationalized thinking, and to form a wide background for future studies.

MR. EVERETT R. LAYS B.S., Ed.M.

Social Studies

The difficult task of social studies today is to make its students aware of the fascination and importance of the past. Although it is presented through the media of inanimate books, maps, and film strips, history actually pulsates with the life of human relations. It tells of past deeds which were the result of the same qualities of human nature which are exhibited by mankind today. Therefore, an analysis of these facts would be most beneficial in bringing ideas up to date. Yes, the only way to gain a secure footing in understanding our complex modern world is to start at the beginning—to study the past.

MR. CHARLES F. BENOIT B.S.
Civics, General Science, General Arithmetic

Business

MR. STANLEY H. HATCH B.S., M.S.
Business Law, Bookkeeping, Office Practice

The business department prepares students for either secretarial school or a job directly from high school. Its courses are planned to give the student everything, from the foundations of business and bookkeeping, to the principles of Gregg's shorthand and touch typing.

All of these courses are designed to help the student who intends to make office work his career and to familiarize him with the situations and responsibilities he will encounter in his future life.

MR. DEMO D. AGGANIS B.S.Ed.

MR. ROY J. MENARD Cert. of B.T.C.

MR. ROBERT H. EASTMAN

MR. ALBERT H. STEVENS B.S.Ed.
Cultural History, Art

The manual arts department helps to educate students in the practical arts employed in home life or in construction. The first of the three major divisions of this department is home economics, which is taught by Mrs. Farrar. Here the students are provided training in both cooking and sewing.

The art division is headed by Mr. Stevens. The students first learn the fundamentals of drawing and design, while the advanced student is allowed somewhat to go into his special field of interest.

For those whose interests run more to mechanics, we offer, our third division, the shop. Here boys are taught mechanical drawing, woodworking, and metal working under the direction of Mr. Eastman and Mr. Menard.

Physical Education

MRS. VIRGINIA A. LOVERING B.S.

MR. VINCENT J. MALEWICZ B.S.

The boys' and girls' physical education departments have several common goals in their curriculum. These include: sportsmanship, character, recreational skills, personal hygiene, and physical fitness. During the year both departments offer a wide variety of areas for personal and group development.

Mr. Malewicz and Mrs. Lovering have incorporated something new this year—a program of standard exercises and tests in connection with President Kennedy's appeal for physical fitness. This program is designed both to evaluate and to improve the fitness of our nation's youth.

Class History

On a bright September day in 1950, seventy eager, bright-eyed youngsters toddled up the steps of a new brick building—the Central School. With the innocence of childhood, little did they realize what arduous challenges formal education would impose upon them or what profound alterations would mold them into the present Class of 1962.

The story of this molding process reveals how substantially a rapidly growing school system has affected our class and how we, in turn, have contributed to its progress.

Those first six years were happy ones. While grappling with the rudiments of grammar school, the class had many opportunities to broaden its horizons by visiting such places as Plymouth Rock, Babson Institute, and Fenway Park. To conclude our elementary education, sixth grade graduation exercises were held in the Central School.

1956 found us adjusting to the newly-acquired freedom and responsibilities of junior high. Here the class obtained a thorough preparation for the intellectual atmosphere and social climate of high school. The culmination of this was a stirring eighth grade graduation held in the crowded gym of the Intermediate School.

As Freshmen in the brand new high school building, the class quickly organized itself. Under the guidance of Mr. Norman F. McGowan, class advisor, we set out to elect officers and form a suitable constitution. On the annual class trip, we explored the fascinating historical sights of Boston.

The highlight of the Sophomore year was "Canadian Sunset," one of the most successful Sophomore hops ever held in East Bridgewater. Later in the year, the class voted to dispense with the usual purchase of class pins in order to have class rings by June.

By October, 1960, the Juniors were already busy planning for their prom, "Venetian Holiday." Marcia Soule and her decoration committee spent long hours painting a mural eighty-two feet in length depicting a sidewalk cafe, complete with checkered tablecloths, canals, and gondolas. Then, on the evening of April 28, 1961, the majority of the class had the pleasure of attending this memorable event.

During the Junior year, our class had a beneficial effect upon the school, in that it rejuvenated the lethargic state of extracurricular activities. We were responsible for initiating the model U. N. group, and we played a major part in reactivating a school literary publication.

This year, as Seniors, we have experienced, more than ever before, the conflict between studies and outside activities. Late in the fall, after weeks of rehearsals, the class presented its production of "Best Foot Forward," a successful comedy directed by Miss Eileen Buckley. For the second consecutive year, Mr. Bradford N. Robinson has ably supervised The Torch.

With the coming of Senior Week activities and graduation, our class history will not come to an abrupt end. Rather, it will diverge into separate parts of the world, into separate areas of endeavor, as each Senior carries the torch of knowledge and character that has been acquired at E.B.H.S. into his adult life.

Class Prophecy

Sixty-seven years have elapsed since 1905 when Einstein proposed the theory that $E=mc^2$. James Veilleux, nuclear physicist, has accomplished the impossible—he has disproved Einstein's equation.

A large crowd is anxiously awaiting the arrival of Veilleux on the super-jet constellation circling the airport. On hand to meet the scientist is Stephen Handy, mayor of the booming metropolis of East Bridgewater. Pilot Stan Usowicz, with the aid of Co-Pilot Eddie Mola, executes another safe landing. As the door opens, we catch a glimpse of the two stewardesses, Karen Fortier, and Diane Pratt. Kenny Ludwig and Denny Lyden of the Army, Tom Stewart and Bobby Noonan of the Marines, and Joel Belanger and Bob Patt of the Navy are the honor guard leading the procession from the plane to the starting point of the parade.

The parade is launched as "Crash" Comeau, Indianapolis Speedway Champ, starts up the lead car. Whoops! Paul Nisby, owner of the Metropolitan Cab Company, has just received another dent. Patrolmen Tony Cruz and Tim Lopez rush to the scene of the accident. There are only minor injuries, but Dr. Paul Bannerman and his two capable nurses, Diane Swenson and Donna Chamberlain, are summoned nevertheless. Ivan Bath, newspaper editor, and his barrage of secretaries, Mary Nicholson, Virginia Anderson, Paula Odabashian, and Jeanne Cormier, are getting details on the accident for the evening paper.

After a brief delay, the parade again gets under way. In one of the cars are movie stars Peggy Parker and Sharon Marshall, two of the highest paid actressus in Hollywood. Diane Post, Janice Wood, Cheryl Voye, Judy Saccocia, Nancy Robideau, and Carolyn Kruger compose a striking majorette drill team bringing up the rear.

As the parade travels through the main streets of town, many familiar names are in evidence on business establishments. Joe's, a restaurant serving an exclusive clientele, is owned and operated by Joe Veronesi and his new chef, Bruce Graber. Luddy's Newsstand, with branches in fifty states, has been taken over by Beth Luddy. Ray Tucker, Roy Engstrom, and John LaBrache are proprietors of a most successful machine shop, while a new beauty salon, owned by Ellen Guarino, offers 100 different hair shades. Marcia Soule and Cathy Taber's dress shop has opened its first branch on the East Coast.

The East Bridgewater Country Club, owned by Jim Rocha, is the location of the testimonial dinner. Master of Ceremonies for the occasion is Roland Bullard, recently elected district attorney. Seated at the head table along with Veilleux and Bullard are senator-elect Susan Thorndike, Pulitzer Prize winner Susan Nutter, television star Virginia Chuckran, baseball star Frank La Rosa, and Gerry Houde, pro-football great. Pam Hutson is about to give the invocation, as Anne Scalzo, noted psychologist, dashes in and sheepishly takes her seat. Entertainment is furnished by Howard Leland, world-renowned composer, who has written a selection to be sung by Gerry Cole, Metropolitan Opera singer. Accompanying Miss Cole is that illustrious quintet, "Danny and the Seniors," headed by Dan Pratt with Linda Carlson, Alvin Rogers, Phil McNally, and Dick Waite. Cheryl Walsh, TV comedienne, delivers a humorous monologue for the assembly.

Other guests at the banquet are Elaine Mitchell, foreign correspondent, and Joe Urbanski, news photographer. Paula Maculewicz, Marcia Gardner, and Barbara Johnson are in town for a convention of social workers, while Chirlaine Paulding, Olympic star, and her trainer, Paulette Atwood, are proudly displaying Chirlaine's latest gold medal. Virginia Taylor, Lucille Buckley, Kathy Levangie, Kenneth Murray, Maryann Keith, Gail Steele, Herbert Gerstley, and Meredith Viets have all entered the teaching profession and are busy discussing the latest trends in education. Debby Faulkner, Linda Cushing, Judy Atwood, Velena Gass, Phyllis Mann, and Nancy Whiteman hold positions as secretaries in Keith Boone's gambling casino. John Raynard has been appointed as special consultant to the Department of Agriculture; Fred Piscionere has opened his own insurance agency; and Jack Curley, back from the swamps of Elmwood, is displaying a large turtle.

As the evening draws to a close, Navy chaplain Donald Nickerson delivers the final benediction. From this brief glance into the future, we see that the class of 1962 has truly proven its motto—"Success usually follows when real effort paves the way."

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

The East Bridgewater Chapter of the National Honor Society has a large membership of seniors, juniors, and sophomores. Students are selected on the basis of scholarship, character, leadership, and service in the school. A sophomore who qualifies in these categories and who has an academic average of 85% or better may become a probationary member. One year later, he becomes an active member and enjoys all privileges of the Society.

The large membership of this group indicates a sharp rise in the desire for scholastic achievement. This increased scholastic interest will undoubtedly give East Bridgewater much to be proud of in future years.

STUDENT COUNCIL

This year has been one of the most active in the history of the Student Council at East Bridgewater. An innovation was the selling of school sweatshirts; this was very successful. Other activities have been several dances and a float in the Civil War Parade. The Council has also been a great help to the school and community. It has eased the lunch room congestion, financially aided the United Nations Group, and collected food at Christmas for the Nursing Association project for needy families. The Student Council has gained the admiration of the students, the school, and the community.

This year, the E.B.H.S. Band has been directed by a new music supervisor, Mr. Donald Leach. He is the former music director of the Whitman Schools and the founder of the Southeastern Massachusetts School Bandmasters' Association (SEMSBA).

A wide variety of music has been prepared by the band this year, including selections from Broadway shows, a semi-classical mood study, stirring marches, and a musical interpretation of a Persian Market. From participation at football games and school assemblies to its major performance of the year at the annual Spring Concert, this group has been ubiquitous in school activities.

Particularly noteworthy are the individual accomplishments of band members. This year our young musicians have been very successful in their tryouts for interscholastic organizations. East Bridgewater was represented by nine students in SEMSBA, three students in District, one member in All-State, and four members in All-New England. Admission to these groups is discriminately based upon the high acquisition of musical skills, and participants are selected from a large number of auditioning students.

For a great number of years the Freshman Chorus and the Choraleers have existed as separate entities, each group preparing its numbers with a rather limited vocal potential. This year, however, the two have been harmoniously combined, under the experienced direction of Mr. James Goodwin, into a single chorus. Such an arrangement has made available the resounding volume of 120 voices. The combined chorus first appeared in the annual Christmas Assembly, where it gave a performance of "The Christmas Song," a very difficult arrangement by Fred Waring. Encouraged by the success of this effect, the combined chorus went on to prepare several pieces for the Spring Concert, one of which was the challenging "Hallelujah Chorus," from Beethoven's "Mount of Olives." Certainly the combination of the two choral groups holds much future promise for better and more versatile musical programs in the future.

The increasing quality of choral work at E.B.H.S. is also evidenced by the increasing number of students that are chosen each year to represent East Bridgewater High at S.E.M.S.B.A., District, All-State, and All-New England choruses.

JUNIOR CLASSICAL LEAGUE

The Junior Classical League, the school's organization for Latin students, has increased remarkably in membership to the large group pictured below. Advisor Mary Sullivan encourages the cultural development of each member by planning various assemblies throughout the year. At one such assembly were shown color slides of ancient Greece and Rome accompanied by an informative lecture. One of the highlights of each year is the J.C.L. initiation, in which interested underclassmen are inducted into the group. Everyone looks forward to the amusing initiation ceremonies which new members must encounter. Extending its activities outside the school, the J.C.L. sends several members to the annual state convention held in a nearby community.

FRENCH CHORAL AND ART GROUP

Under the direction of Miss Sullivan and Mr. Ketcham, the French Choral and Art Group stands as the largest organization in the school. For many French students it has stimulated a thriving interest in the culture of France. One of the programs held this year to maintain this interest was the annual Christmas songfest of French carols and hymns. Several other activities of the group, encompassing museum tours, illustrated art lectures, and guest speakers, are aimed at broadening the cultural background of each member, in order that he may leave E.B.H.S. more deeply enriched with the spirit of the French language.

East Coast Model United Nations Conference

One of the most rewarding and worthwhile organizations at E.B.H.S. is the East Coast Model United Nations Delegation—an active study group which prepares for and participates in a working model of the United Nations. As 1,000 students in ninety of the better schools on the East Coast obtain background material on the country they are to represent and prepare themselves for the role they are to undertake at the Model U.N., they naturally secure a wealth of knowledge from their studies. It is at the three-day ECMUNC itself, however, when delegates assume their positions in the General Assembly, Security Council, or various committees, that participants grasp the intriguing implications of foreign affairs by presenting and debating their own resolutions.

In 1960 nine members of the student body were selected by Mr. Loud to represent the school in the Fourth ECMUNC, which was held in April, 1961, in Wellesley, Massachusetts. Under a firm policy of complete student control, this group succeeded not only in their performance at the conference, but also in their ability to implant the tremendous student interest in the Model U.N. which now exists. With ample support from the school committee and the student body, this year's delegates represented the country of Iraq at the Fifth ECMUNC in Montclair, New Jersey.

STUDENT EXCHANGE

The Student Exchange Program was instituted to enrich the student's knowledge of city and town government, to encourage pride in his community, to broaden understanding of metropolitan problems, and to gain further appreciation of those who render competent and faithful public service. Under this program several students from a city high school visit a town and a group from the town high school visits the city. This year East Bridgewater negotiated the mutual exchange with Quincy High School.

During the exchange day, the students visit places of historical interest in the community, industrial plants, and the town offices or city hall. After talking with local officials, they attend a town meeting or a session of the city council to learn the intricacies of local government.

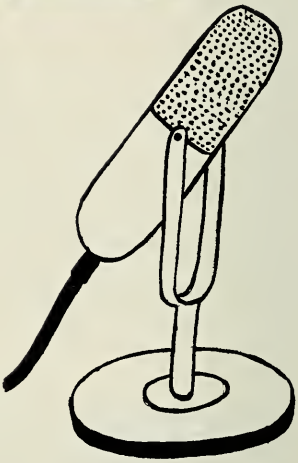
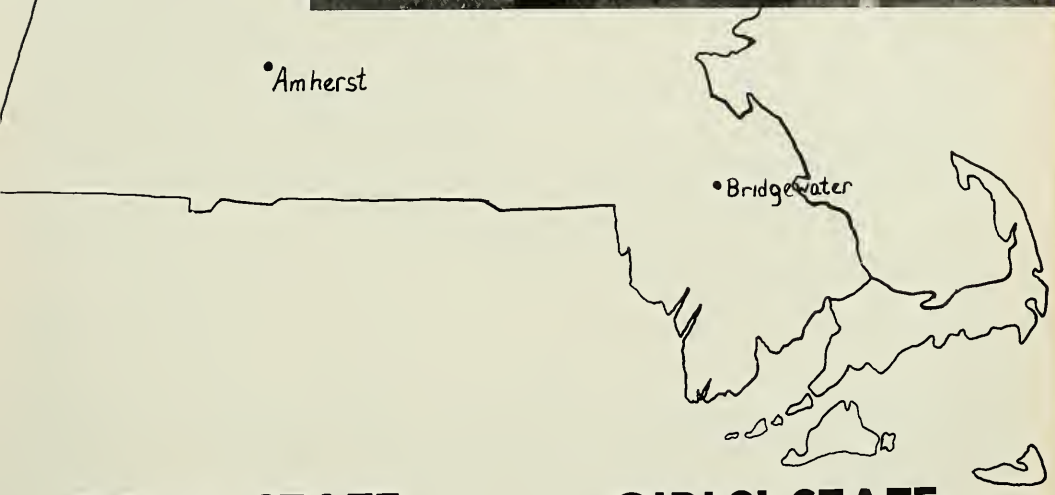
VOICE OF TOMORROW



The 1962 season of WBET's "Voice of Tomorrow" program officially opened on January 18, 1962, in the Michael J. McCarthy auditorium. East Bridgewater High School, due to its outstanding performances in the past, was chosen to be the first participant in this series.

The topic selected for discussion was the controversial John Birch Society. A panel of four students—Anne Scalzo, Nan Darling, Susan Thorndike, and James Veilleux — related the history, background, platforms, and activities of the Society. The guest speaker, Mr. Oswald Blumit of the American Institute, presented his views on ultra-conservatism in the United States, and moderator Dorothy Dale opened the forum to questions proffered by the students in the audience.

Through this discussion, students who were relatively unfamiliar with the John Birch Society were made more aware of the policies and influence of this type of organization. It is through revelations such as this one that American youth can understand the political conflicts existing today and prepare themselves to face the challenge of tomorrow.



BOYS' STATE

Under the auspices of the local American Legion post and the Boosters' Club, three of last year's junior boys—Roland Bullard, Stephen Handy, and Donald Nickerson—represented East Bridgewater at the 1961 session of American Legion Boys' State on the UMass campus in Amherst. They were chosen on the basis of their high scholastic standing, citizenship, and deportment.

For one week participants lived in a model government, where the duties of state, county, and community were performed by duly elected public servants. They engaged in law and citizenship classes, myriad elections, and numerous athletic events. This program was certainly a rewarding experience in Americanism and human relations that each Boys' Stater will not soon forget.

GIRLS' STATE

Representing East Bridgewater at the 1961 Massachusetts Girls' State was Susan Nutter who, for one week, participated in model state, county, and local governments. While living on the Bridgewater State College campus, the representatives became more closely concerned with the problems of government and learned through experience how the theory of law is applied to the people. Girls' State was also a valuable lesson in adapting to society. The girls were taught to develop better values, to appreciate opportunities, and to make themselves worthy of the American way of life. The program was an inspiration to all who attended; no participant could ever forget the understanding gained there.

LIBRARY ASSISTANTS

Students in the East Bridgewater High School are fortunate that experience in both library and secretarial work is available to them. In the library, Mrs. Hynes willingly gives her time to teach interested students the basic techniques employed in library work. These involve book selection, circulation, mending, processing, shelving, and display work. Many students in the school take advantage of this worthwhile opportunity.

When publication of the Student's Pen was terminated in 1959 to make way for the innovation of a class yearbook, the need for a publication of literary value arose at East Bridgewater High School. To meet this demand a staff was organized in 1961 to formulate ideas for a new and different type of school periodical. Many months of work resulted in a new venture, The Sachem Scout, first circulated to the students in June of 1961. Since this publication consisted entirely of creative writing, this need was sufficiently fulfilled.

Student response to the Sachem Scout, however, indicated that several changes were in order as the staff was reformed at the outset of the new year. The title Sachem Scout was replaced by Argus, the name of the famous mythological ship with a thousand eyes. This title aptly fit the transformation of the periodical from a magazine to a newspaper. Among the new features incorporated were editorials on important world, national, and local events and on controversial school problems.

The aim of Argus is to extend to the student an opportunity to express his opinion on any topic. Among other regular feature articles included in Argus are detailed reports on school organizations, athletic events, interesting novels, the latest movies, and student literary efforts—all designed to suit varied interests. The power of the press is universally known. Argus hopes to yield a small portion of this power by encouraging a free exchange of ideas within the school on problems of a controversial nature and, by sufficient student response, help to alleviate these problems.

This year all issues of Argus were produced in the school. A small but highly functional business staff typed each page onto a stencil; proofreaders carefully checked the stencils for errors; and the final copy was reproduced on the mimeograph machine in the office. Plans are currently being formulated to have the Argus printed at a nominal cost to each subscriber.

Favorable reaction has indicated thus far a strong interest in this new form of school periodical. The editors sincerely hope that students will become interested enough to contribute their efforts toward making Argus the organ of student opinion at E.B.H.S.

THE

As the reader thumbs through this edition of The Torch, he will find a great many changes from last year's annual —changes that have been necessitated by a rapidly growing high school. We felt that the increased activity of school life could be adequately covered only by enlarging the book, so that it would go beyond the mere publication of a senior album to encompass the true function of the modern yearbook—a complete record of the school year.

To fulfill this function the staff has concentrated on a greater literary content. For the first time, several underclassmen were added to the senior organization to provide a more balanced presentation of events in the school. Wherever possible, outmoded layouts used at E.B.H.S. in the past have been deleted to make way for pages of more original and contemporary design.

Throughout the many hectic months of organizing, research, planning, writing, photography, make-up, and editing to meet copy deadlines, we have tried to keep our original theme of expansion foremost in our minds. Even outwardly the yearbook has expanded—in size, number of copies, and expense. Yet this effort is but another of the primary steps in the promising development of yearbook production in our school.

FOOT

1961 saw a rebuilding year for the football squad. A relatively large number of injuries proved to be a plaguing factor to Coaches Vincent J. Malewicz and Charles F. Benoit. Most of the starting team, however, will not be affected by graduation.

FIELD

For the past four years, it has been customary to allow any eighth grade girls interested in participating in field hockey when they enter high school to play on the junior varsity squad. The advantages of this practice manifested themselves this year in the comparative success of Easties' field hockey team, since many varsity players had joined the squad under this program. The early season practices and intensive training sessions conditioned the girls for the rigorous schedule of league games. The team has continued to improve during the four years since its inception—from only two wins in the first season to four victories this year.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

This year's varsity squad, while barely missing qualification for the Tech Tourney, came through in fine style with a record of eleven wins and six losses.

Optimism was high at the beginning of the '61-'62 season, as the Moreymen trounced Hull High in the opening game of the season. In a tough contest with Holbrook, the Easties decreased a fourteen point deficit in the last quarter, only to succumb to a 62-60 loss. Avenging last year's defeat, the team thumped a revitalized West Bridgewater squad, but was set back in a clash with league-leading Scituate.

By spirited last-minute efforts the team edged Cohasset, Marshfield, and Norwell. Bridgewater-Raynham and Hull High also fell prey to the Morey quintet.

The team suffered its worst defeat in the hands of Scituate, as the sailors clobbered E. B. by a score of 70-41. But in the second portion of league play, the Easties pulled through by upsetting Scituate in a thrilling game which exhibited the most coordinated teamwork seen by E. B. fans all year. Rounding out the season with losses to Duxbury and Marshfield, East Bridgewater bombed Bridgewater-Raynham in a final South Shore League contest.

GIRLS'

The East Bridgewater High School girls' basketball team had an exciting season this year, as the girls never lost their enthusiasm and fighting spirit. With one exception, all the games were close and well played. The best game of the season was a 36-34 loss to Scituate, the leaders of the South Shore League. At graduation the team will lose its captain, Chirlaine Paulding, Carolyn Kruger, Anne Scalzo, Paula Maculewicz, and Gail Steele. Mrs. Lovering coached the squad this year with the assistance of Mrs. Todd.

Last fall was a banner season for the cross country team, as they accumulated a record of four wins and three losses. After league competition Coach Demo D. The team placed 1st in the Catholic Memorial Invitational, 2nd in the South Shore Meet, 6th in the Braintree Meet, and 7th in the State Meet.

TRACK

Track in 1962 was predicted to be a good year for E.B.H.S. Although graduation took its toll of fine track athletes, there were many seasoned veterans and highly skilled underclassmen available to insure a successful season. Fine runners, such as Mike Powers, Larry Leland, and Danny Crowley, proved to be a valuable asset to our team. Field events were aptly taken care of by Ray Tucker, Bob Patt, and Keith Boone. This year the team was under the training of Coach Demo Agganis.

GIRLS' SOFTBALL

From the 1960-1961 softball season the girls gained a great deal of valuable playing experience. A strong turnout is expected this spring, particularly from the junior class since many junior girls held starting positions last year. With the training gained by underclassmen players last season, Coach Lovering anticipates an outstanding improvement in the team's record.

East Bridgewater High is certainly proud of her fine cheerleaders who ignite the flame of school spirit at many an athletic event. Through grueling practices during the summer months, a car wash to raise money for new uniforms, and the innovation of new and better cheers, this group has done a great deal to boost the morale of our football and basketball teams and to encourage support from the student body.

CAPTAINS' COURSE

TENNIS

Tennis has grown rapidly in popularity since its organization a few years ago. Although it is now only on an intramural basis, there are hopes for an interscholastic team in the very near future. Under the excellent coaching of Norman McGowan, the members are instructed in the fundamentals and their basic application. During the winter months practice is held in the gym; in the spring games are played on courts in this area. The climax of the year's participation is a competitive play-off. Because of the great interest in this sport among the students, tennis has a promising future at East Bridgewater High School.

CO-OPERATION — U. S. Army Engineers' Eastern Ocean District converted this Navy Floating Power Plant for the Arctic. Contractor — Bethlehem Steel Co.; consulting engineers — Metcalf and Eddy; and Reynolds, Smith and Hills. Military Sea Transportation Service towed it to northern Greenland to serve with the Ballistic Missile Early Warning System.

Foxboro controls "export" steam for unique Air Force floating power plant

A seagoing cargo vessel converted to a modern, shore-type steam-electric power plant. That's the YFP-10, designed for the Air Force — and floated to a site off northern Greenland where it will produce steam and power for the Ballistic Missile Early Warning System.

The YFP-10 can produce up to 135,000 pounds of export steam per hour. All steam temperature and pressure variables are under Foxboro control. You will find Consotrol* control stations on the panel — Foxboro indicating pressure and temperature transmitters, and Foxboro valves on the line.

The Foxboro control system aboard the YFP-10 is another example of how Foxboro engineering and manufacturing skills serve the nation — and you — with advanced instrumentation.
